

Leslie Sieck

Vice President for Economic and Workforce Development and Executive Director Tri-State Development at Culver-Stockton College

Leslie Sieck serves as the first Vice President for Economic and Workforce Development and Executive Director of Tri-State Development at Culver-Stockton College. In this role, Leslie implements and oversees projects and programs that promote the 42 rural counties in the tri-state region while connecting organizations, companies, elected officials, and individuals to drive workforce, economic, and community development initiatives.

Leslie earned a B.A. in Accounting from William Jewell College and an MBA from Mid America Nazarene University. She spent her early career working in Fortune 100 companies as an accountant and business analyst, transitioning to strategic business development, higher education advancement, and program development.

With a deep commitment to the tri-state region, Leslie is dedicated to forging strong partnerships with regional stakeholders. She is passionate about highlighting and advancing key economic and community initiatives, ensuring sustainable growth and development for the rural communities she serves.